

Shading is an empirical spread across windows, not a calibrated confidence interval. X/Y have no independent flight-path reference; Z uses the telemetry-derived vertical reference.